REPORT OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

In submitting our report, we omit the usual synopsis of the several schools, because we doubt its expediency and justice. We have no faith in the effort of how to say a thing and not say it; of how to tell the whole truth, and yet hurt nobody's feelings in doing it. It is much better to advise the teachers privately of their shortcomings, than to parade their mistakes and failings in public print before the gaze of every captious critic. If they are to be retained as teachers, it is certainly advisable to refrain from placing them in an unpleasant position before the public; and if they are to be dismissed as incompetent, common decency requires that it should be without censure, for we can predicate for no teacher either success or failure until a trial has been made. The fear of disgrace, in the event of failure, deters many from making the attempt, and proving themselves competent teachers, while it is a source of great anxiety to many who are brave enough to make the attempt, but who cannot help looking forward, with fear and trembling, to the appearance of the annual school report.

Your committee believe in progression in the art and means of teaching, and that improvement in the implements put into the hands of teachers and scholars is constantly being made. Believing thus, your committee feel in duty bound to recommend and adopt such means as in their judgment may be for the best interests of the scholars; and after a careful examination, and with the advice of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Principal of the State Normal School, have adopted Prof. Swinton's Language Lessons for the district schools, and Swinton's Progressive Grammar for the high school, believing them to be the best text-books extant for teaching the English language; and after a trial of three terms in the high school, and two in the common schools, we find they are working admirably, especially in the hands of wide-awake and progressive teachers. We believe the design of English grammar is to teach how to write and speak the English language correctly and with propriety. Every child, who leaves the district school at the age of twelve or thirteen years, ought to be able to write a business or friendly letter neatly and correctly; but the fact is, that comparatively few such scholars can do this. The design of Swinton's Language Lessons is to take the young pupil on, step by step, and give him "living knowledge" of the language he is daily using. We recommend to teachers to post themselves well as to the plan of the book, and the author's ideas of teaching it, and then follow the directions and suggestions given, and they will be surprised at the real progress the pupil is making.

There is too little harmony and concert of action between the prudential committee and the school committee. In some instances authority has been set up by the prudential committee over and in defiance of that of the school committee, to the great injury of the school. Teachers are oftentimes employed, and allowed to begin the school and keep for weeks, without a certificate, and without even notifying the committee that the school had commenced.

Many of our young people have got the mistaken idea that a term or two at the high school will qualify them for teachers, and we fear this notion is prevalent among many of our prudential committees. They may pass an examination satisfactory to the committee, and yet lack nearly every quality that makes a successful teacher. They have no method of their own, and are unable to carry out any suggestions of the committee. Our boys and girls should not attempt to teach until they have finished at least the general course of study in the high school.

There seems to be a tendency among many scholars to be absent from the examination. Especially is this so in the high school. Parents should not allow this of their children;—it is against the rules of the school, and against the laws of the state, and does great injustice to the teachers. Hereafter, scholars who absent themselves from the examination at the end of the term will be required to give a reasonable excuse, and pass an examination before the committee before reëntering the classes of the high school.

The division of the money appropriated for the support of schools, as made last year, meets with the general approval of your committee, and they would recommend that it be divided in the same manner this year. It more nearly equalizes the length of schools throughout the town, thereby giving the scholars in the smaller districts equal advantages with those in the larger or central districts.

THE HIGH SCHOOL.

At the close of the last spring term Mr. N. N. Atkinson and Miss Annie Hill resigned their positions as principal and assistant teachers in Simond's Free High School. William Goldthwaite, A. B., and Miss Mary F. Reddington, were elected to fill the vacancies thus created. It affords us pleasure to say that Mr. Goldthwaite and Miss Reddington are performing their several duties in the school with energy, fidelity, and ability,—understanding thoroughly the business management of the school, and employing skilful and thorough methods in imparting instruction.

We would say, in this connection, that it cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of pupils and parents, that the entire course of the pupil in the high school may be greatly impaired by entering too young, by insufficient preparation, or by the absence of a few weeks, or even days, sometimes, when the class is learning principles entirely essential to their future course.

The advantages this school offers are not inferior to those of any first-class high school, and it is to be hoped that not only every pupil of our own town will avail himself of the full benefit of its regular courses, but that many will be attracted to our institution from adjoining towns. Every pupil in the common schools should complete the high school course before entering upon the duties of active life. The few years thus added to the preparation for life's duties will yield a rich return, and in after years it will be regarded as the most fortunate investment ever made.
